

She came down from the mountains

VOL 1 // THE WITNESS

Adri M.

for course GRSJ515 // Winter 2026

SHE CAME DOWN FROM THE MOUNTAINS

VOL. 1, THE WITNESS

This zine traces five generations of women from the stolen Huetar land of Itskazú and Acserrí to Turtle Island. It is an archive in three voices and a record of resilience against settler-colonial violence.

To Maruca and Anita, for the resilience.

To Tacha and Lore, also for the stories.

To Zoe, for the future.

And to all the women before them.

Adri M.

GRSJ515, Winter 2026

polivoxia.ca

Available online:

Colophon (v. 1.0.1). 8.5 × 13.13 in saddle-stitched booklet, printed half-size. Set in Atkinson Hyperlegible, Courier Prime, and Fraunces. Cover background: a grainy-photocopy hillshade of the Aserri topography, land of Chief Acserrí. All image effects done with custom-made software. Typeset in Typst. Imposed with Plica.

Licensed under CC BY-ND 4.0. Share freely with attribution.

No modifications permitted. creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nd/4.0

FIVE GENERATIONS

THE WOMEN OF THIS ARCHIVE

I. Maruca

Born some time in the 1910s. She came down from the land of Chief Acserrí. They called her María Eugenia, but she never told her name. She worked as an indentured maid until she died after giving birth to Anita.

II. Anita

Born 1931 in the Zúñiga Gutiérrez house, indentured in her own home. She started slipping back to the mountains at ten. She met Carlos in the park at fourteen, married him at sixteen, and was expelled then from the family. She never returned.

III. Lorena

Born in 1956. She was Anita's eldest daughter. She took the bus from Itskazú to the capital to visit who she thought was her uncle. On one of those trips she met Héctor. They fell wildly in love.

IV. Natacha

Born in 1979. She crossed from Huetar land to Turtle Island and made a new life there.

V. Zoe

Born in 2016. The youngest of the line and the future of it. A word that means life.

Traditions of storytelling are integrally linked to gatherings of commemoration, protest, and resistance.“

Amahl Bishara,
“Speaking Across Generations and Geographies of the Ongoing Nakba at Seventy-six”

She came down from the mountains.

Nobody was sure why or how, but one day she descended from the land of Chief Acserri
to the Valley.

Maruca, they called her,
though they weren't sure if that was her real name.

Some called her María Eugenia.
If she had another name, she never told.

Her skin was brown. Her hair was dark, long and silky, and she kept it neatly tied back.

Everyone looked at her when she came in.

She was a big presence wherever she was.

It was the 1920s in so-called Costa Rica's Itskazú: a land stolen by the Spanish centuries ago, whose Indigenous people they murdered, enslaved, and displaced, relegated to hard-to-reach areas like jungles or the top of the mountains.

Nobody knows the names of those people either.

They were called Huetares by the settlers, and that's how they are remembered now.

THE ZÚÑIGA GUTIÉRREZ HOUSE

Maruca, seeking a way to sustain her life, found the Zúñiga Gutiérrez house. They were criollos, direct descendants of those Spanish conquistadores and settlers. “People of God”, “good Christians”, they let her stay and work as a maid.

PEOPLE IN THE HOUSE

- El Señor
- La Señora
- Two daughters
- Five sons
- The gardener
- The maid

It was a contract without writing, paper or ink. It was indentured servitude after all. The terms were never written down. They never had to be.

The gardener called himself by the Spanish name Juvenal, but he too came from the mountains; his original name also lost.

Juvenal and Maruca fell in love.

And in 1931, Anita was born.

Born from the mountain people who lost their names, language, and culture, yet endured.

Even when humanity has failed,
we continue to birth our people.“

Amahl Bishara,
“Speaking Across Generations and Geographies of the Ongoing Nakba at Seventy-six”

ITSKAZÚ · HUETAR · ACSERRÍ · MONTAÑAS

SHECAMEDOWNFROMTHEMOUNTAINSNOBODYWASSUREWHYORHOWBUTONEDAYSHEDESCENDEDFROMTHELANDOFCHIE
FACCERRITOTHEVALLEYMARUCATHEYCALLEDHERTHOUGHTTHEYWERENOTSUREIFTHATWASHERREALNAMESOMECAL
LEDH
RIAE
HEHA
HERS
EFRO
LKYA
CALL
NTUR
DAND
HENA
ETTL
OSUS
OSDI
FGOD
DJUV
NBOR
ANGU
TYHA
STTI
RMEY
APEW
MOUN
WASS
EZUN
HADN
AGUI
ANJO
EOTH
HERG
ADAD
TLEI
NZOE
DOFC
THEY SSUR
HEVA
ALNA
HER
RKL
OST
EN
RE
HU
LLOSDIRECTDESC
ODCHRISTIANSTHEY
DINANITA
ULTURE
EFIRS
LOR
ULD
OE
HEDTHEZUNIGAGUT
NAMESANDBECAME RA
I
NA
K
UGENI
DANOTHERNAMESHENEVER
KINWASBROWNASWASUSUALFORP
MTHOSEPARTSHERHAIRWASDARKLONGA
NDSHEKEPTITNEATLYTIEDBACKITWASTHES
EDCOSTARICASITSKAZUALANDSTOLENBYTHESPANI
IESAGOWHOSEINDIGENOUSPEOPLETHEYMURDEREDENS
DISPLACEDRELEGATEDTOHARDTOREACHAREASNOBODYKN
MESOFTHOSEPEOPLEEITHERTHEYWERECALLEDHUETARESBY
ERSANDTHATSHOWTHEYAREREMEMBEREDNOWMARUCASEEKINGA
TAINHERLIFEFOUNDTHEZUNIGAGUTIERREZHOUSETHEYWERECR
RECTDESCENDANTSOFTHOSESPANISHCONQUISTADOR
GOODCHRISTIANSTHEYLEATHERSTAYAND
ENALANDMARUCAFELLINLOVEANDINAN
NFROMTHEMOUNTAINPEOPLEWHOLOSTT
AGEANDCULTUREYETSURVIVEDEVENW
SFAILEDWECONTINUETOIRTHOURPEO
MESHEESCAPEDSHEWASYEARSOLDMEGU
EXPLORARMESENTIALIBRESHECONTINU
HENEVERSHESHOULDHERMOTHERCAMEDOWN
TAINSANITALIKEDTOESCAPEBACKTOTHEM
HERANAWAYWITHCARLOSANDGOTMARRIEDSH
IGAGUTIERREZLASTNAMESANDBECAMEANIT
INECHILDRENCARLOSMIGUELLUISALBERT
LLERMOMARTINLUISANGELMARIADELOST
SEMARIAEUGENIAAFERNANDOMARTINTHEY
ERSTOPOVERTYLORENATOOKTHEBUSFROMI
RANDFATHERANDONONEOFTHOSEBUSTRIPSSH
AUGHTERNATACHAUNEXPECTEDDESTINYBRO
SLAN DANDHEREINTHISSTOLENLANDNATAC
AWOR DTHATMEANSLIFESHEALSO CAMEDOWNFROMTHEMOUNTAINS OFTH HIEF ACCERRIONTHESHOULDERSOFFHERANCESTORSTHEYARENOT THE AREOU RPRESENTRESISTANCESHECAMEDOWNFROMTHEMOUNTAINSN OBO
EWHY ORHOWBUTONEDAYSHEDESCENDEDFROMTHELANDOFCHIEFACC ERR
LLEY MARUCATHEYCALLEDHERTHOUGHTTHEYWERENOTSUREIFTHATW ASH
MESOMECALLEDHERMARIAEUGENIAIFSHEHAD ANOTHERNAMESHENEV ER
SKINWASBROWNASWASUSUALFORPEOPLEFROM THOSEPARTSHERHAI RW
ONGANDSILKYANDSHEKEPTITNEATLYTIEDBA CKITWASTHESINSOC AL
ARICASITSKAZUALANDSTOLENBYTHESPANIS HCENTURIESAGOWHO SEI
OUSPEOPLETHEYMURDEREDENSLAVEDANDDISP LACEDRELEGATEDT OHA
ACHAREASNOBODYKNOWSTHENAMESOFTHOSEPEOP LEEITHERTHEYWER ECA
ETARESBYTHESETTLERSANDTHATSHOWTHEYAREREM EMBEDEREDNOWMARUCAS
NGAWAYTOSUSTAINHERLIFEFOUNDTHEZUNIGAGUTIERR EZHOUSETHEYWERE
LLOSDIRECTDESC ENDANTS OFTHO SESPANISHCONQUIS TADORESPeopleOF G
ODCHRISTIANSTHEY LETHERS TAYA NDWORKASAMAJDUV ENALANDMARUCAFELLINLO
DINANITA WASBORNB ORNFROM THEM OUNTAINPEOPLEWH OLOSTTHEIRNAMESLANGUAGE
ULTURE YET SURVIVE DEVENW HENH UMANITYHASFAILED WECONTINUETOIRTHOURPEOP
EFIRS TT IMESHEE SCAPED SHE WASYEARSOLDMEGU STAB AZAF ARME
LOR ARMESEN TIALIB RE SHECONTINUEDTOES CAPE WHENE VERS
ULD HERMOT HERCAM ED OWNFR OMTHEMOU NTA INSANITALI
OE SCAPEB ACKTOTH E MWHE NSHEWA SSH
AWAYWITHCARLOSAN DG OTMA RRIED
HEDTHEZUNIGAGUT IE RREZ
NAMESANDBECAME ANI RA THEY
I NECHILDRENCARLOSMIGUELLUISALBERTOANALORENAGUILLERMOMARTINLUISANGELMARIADELOSANGELESHER
NA NJOSEMARIAEUGENIAAFERNANDOMARTINTHEYALSOLOSTNINEOTHERSTOPOVERTYLORENATOOKTHEBUSFROMITS
K

RESISTANCE · RESILIENCE · WILD FIRE · LIFE

A RECORD OF GOOD WORKS

Things changed abruptly when Anita was only one month old and Maruca fell ill.

The settler Christian family she worked for did not give her a break after the birth. She had to keep doing her job: going to the river to wash the clothes of ten people, among other tasks.

They said she got espasmos (spasms), but nobody really knows why she died.

The settler Zúñiga Gutiérrez family, good Christians as they were, took in baby Anita. They took care of her, as long as she knew her place.

They gave her their last names. She became Anita Zúñiga Gutiérrez but she had to work for them as hard as her mother. She was now an investment.

They fed her one cup of coffee and one piece of bread for breakfast; whatever was left for dinner. The family always called it Christian CHARITY.

Years later, when old-age Anita remembered those years, she called it

TORTURE

Anita · Primera Comunión.
9 años de edad.

Years passed and Anita grew up thinking she was a Zúñiga Gutiérrez child.

Nobody ever told her about Maruca,
her past,
her relationship with Juvenal.

Reproducing the eliminatory violence of settler colonialism.

She cooked.

She made everyone's beds.

She worked as an indentured maid at her own house.

It was only when she was older that she started questioning things, noticing how her skin was darker than her sisters' and brothers'.

It was then that she also began to escape back to the mountains.

Her mother came down from the mountains.
Anita liked to escape back to them.

The first time she escaped, she was 10 years old.

Me gustaba zafarme y explorar. Me sentía libre.

- Anita

(I liked to break out and explore. I felt free.)

When she came back, she was punished. They locked her in and denied her food. Yet, she continued to escape.

Her brother Hernán, twenty years older, sneaked her food when she was starved. He had always been kind. After primary school, he paid for her studies as a seamstress. Little by little, she was able to learn a craft.

darker

me sentía libre

Itskazú

than her sisters'

and brothers'

wild fire

Me gustaba zafarme

she came down from the mountains

darker

Acserri

bastard daughter

Hernán el criollo

indentured servitude

the secret

Christian charity

good Christians

the maid

settler colonialism

Hernán el criollo

sold

Old-age Anita, decades later, reflected how she came to realize Hernán was not her brother but her real father.

She remembered all his attentions and pondered how she was not born from Maruca and Juvenal the gardener, but from Hernán el criollo, son of Spanish settlers.

All kept a secret, this is what made the Zúñiga Gutiérrez take her in, since she was their bastard daughter.

It all helps explain all the duresses she had to go through.

When Anita was 14 years old, she was allowed to go to the park for one hour with her sisters. That was the social space of the moment: girls walked around the park in one direction, while boys walked in the opposite one. It was there where she met Carlos Mora.

They fell in love.

Anita y Carlos · bailando

Her family was opposed. Hernán didn't like Carlos, and she was supposed to marry someone else as part of the Christian family business. She was already sold.

So Anita escaped one last time.

When she was 16, she ran away with Carlos and got married. She shed the Zúñiga Gutiérrez last names and became the way she was known until the day she died.

ANITA MORA

When she came back to the house and told them what had happened, they first tried to convince her, offering her money, inheritance. When she didn't relinquish, they threatened her, disavowed her, and finally came clear: she was adopted anyway.

EXPELLED

16 years old · never to return again

Anita renounced everything and moved in with Carlos. He used to work the banana plantations on the Caribbean coast, but was now a baker.

Together they built a house and had nine children:

Carlos Miguel
Luis Alberto
Ana Lorena
Guillermo Martín
Luis Ángel
María de los Ángeles
Hernán José
María Eugenia
Fernando Martín

They also lost nine others to poverty. Poverty that also affected her health, after years of enduring.

A dark and brutal example of the violence of European modernity on the land and on our bodies.“

Barakat, R. *In Search of Words:
A Temporary Title for Horror.*
Native American and Indigenous Studies.

9 reproductive genocide

Time moved on.

Years later, Hernán, who Anita still thought was her brother, got into trouble and ended up in prison.

Anita's health was too weak to visit, so she sent her eldest daughter, Lorena.

Every time, Lorena took the bus from Itskazú to the capital and visited who she thought was her uncle, not knowing it was her grandfather.

It was on one of those bus trips that she met Héctor.

Lorena and Héctor fell wildly in love.

They had a daughter:

NATACHA

Unexpected destiny brought Natacha to Turtle Island, where she became an uninvited guest. The daughter of displaced people living amongst others sharing a similar oppression. Indigeneity from South to North.

Los hijos de Anita.

Lorena frente a su casa, con gente del barrio.

And here, in this also stolen land, Natacha's daughter was born. Zoe. A word that means life.

NATACHA

IN 100 WORDS

Electricity, two lightning bolts circling a gentle shadow you can get lost in. Features so imprinted in your mind that will never be forgotten.

An old, heavy, loud love. The one given not by innocence but by a life shared in happiness, pain, struggle and trust.

A space both of respite and of challenge. Where comfort can be found but complacency is not welcome.

The scent of cinnamon, turmeric, clove and coffee frame dark and brown hues, outlined by the marks of a life lived to its fullest.

Passion; an eternal wild fire burning inside, handed down for generations.

ZOE

IN 100 WORDS

A warm ray of sunshine turned human. Unbridled love as the expression of a soul full of trust, that hasn't yet known fear.

Passion, surface manifestation of true emotions that yet go deep and wide. Clear words that know how to express thoughts.

Peace, the kind only found on those unmarred by the inexorable harshness of life. Serenity, the absolute surrender allowed to those who dream truly.

Whiffs of metaphorical yet ever-present flowers. A bouquet of daisies and lavenders with hints of almond and strawberries.

Softness, happiness, sweetness, but an eternal wild fire burning inside, handed down for generations.

Zoe shares the legacy of all the women who came before her. Like Maruca, Anita, Lorena and Natacha, she also came down from the mountains of the land of Chief Acserri, on the shoulders of her ancestors.

EPILOGUE • WITNESS

Natacha is my partner and the mother of my daughter Zoe, who shares the legacy of all the women who came before her.

I tell these stories as a witness. In sharing these lives I try to honour the legacy of all these women who survived against all odds; who never stopped resisting and gave all they had.

I tell these stories to keep them alive and make them known. They are still being written and told, they are still moving.

They are not the past;
they are our present resistance.

The notion of the Indigenous as static serves all settler colonial states in their attempts to relegate Indigenous people to the past.“

Kauanui, J. K. Enduring Palestine.
Native American and Indigenous Studies.

The road to peace envisages a straight line from violence to freedom, yet it has historically proven to be a much more complicated geometry.“

Ghanayem, E. Traveling Indigeneity.
Native American and Indigenous Studies.

We need to tell our stories to each other, even when it hurts. We need to say the names of our martyrs and prisoners, and to say place names too, even when those names might seem insignificant.“

Bishara, A. Speaking Across Generations.
Native American and Indigenous Studies.

The testimonies of women are acts of resistance that challenge the erasure of their existence and assert their right to life and to land.“

Ihmoud, S. Countering Reproductive Genocide.
Native American and Indigenous Studies.

REFERENCES

Barakat, R. (2025). In search of words: A temporary title for horror. Native American and Indigenous Studies, 12(1), 76–82.

Bishara, A. (2025). Speaking across generations and geographies of the ongoing Nakba at seventy-six. Native American and Indigenous Studies, 12(1), 54–70.

Brignoli, H. P. (1990). Migration and settlement in Costa Rica, 1700–1850. In D. J. Robinson (Ed.), Migration in colonial Spanish America (pp. 279–294). Cambridge University Press.

Ghanayem, E. (2025). Traveling indigeneity and the making of global theory. Native American and Indigenous Studies, 12(1), 109–123.

Ihmoud, S. (2025). Countering reproductive genocide in Gaza: Palestinian women’s testimonies. Native American and Indigenous Studies, 12(1), 33–53.

Kauanui, J. K. (2025). Enduring Palestine: Critical interventions in Native American and Indigenous Studies. Native American and Indigenous Studies, 12(1), 5–32.

Monestel, N. (2025, September 28). Personal communication.

Mora, L. (2026, January 7). Personal communication.

YOUR WITNESS

FOR YOUR OWN STORIES, NAMES, AND PLACES.

We need to tell our stories to each other, even when it hurts.“

What names has your archive risked of losing?

Who came before you?

What mountains did your people come down from?

What stories are still moving?

“We need to tell our stories to each other, even when it hurts.”

Download this zine.

Adri M.

She came down from the mountains.

VOL. 1, THE WITNESS

Licensed under CC BY-ND 4.0. Share freely with attribution. No modifications.